A mountain is a large landform that rises above the surrounding land in a limited area, usually in the form of a peak. A mountain is generally considered to be steeper than a hill. Mountains are formed through tectonic forces or volcanism. These forces can locally raise the surface of the Earth. Mountains erode slowly through the action of rivers, weather conditions, and glaciers. A few mountains are isolated summits, but most occur in huge mountain ranges. High elevations on mountains produce c

The Mountain was a political group during the French Revolution. Its members, called the Montagnards, sat on the highest benches in the National Assembly. They were the most radical group and opposed the Girondins. The term, first used during a session of the Legislative Assembly, came into general use in 1793. By the summer of 1793, that pair of opposed minority groups divided the National Convention. That year, led by Maximilien Robespierre, the Montagnards unleashed the Reign of Terror. The M

Irvin Stock, in his 1994 essay "The Magic Mountain" appearing in Ironic out of Love: The Novels of Thomas Mann, examines the novel as an account of Hans Castorp's journey of transformation, his navigation "through the dangers of the magic mountain." The story is ultimately a positive one, Stock contends, noting that "our hero is saved at the end."
